Paris, 17 January, 2025 - Jeantet is proud to announce the arrival of Benjamin May, co-founder of the Aramis law firm, and David Roche, along with their team. Their addition consolidates and strengthens the expertise of the firm's Tech/IP department, which will be headed by Frédéric Sardain.

Benjamin May is one of the founding partners of Aramis, where he has built up an outstanding intellectual property, patent and information technology practice. For almost two decades, he has played a key role in the development of this structure, standing out in the fields of innovation, litigation and new technologies.

Strategic reinforcement for a leading team

With the arrival of Benjamin May and David Roche, Jeantet strengthens a team whose expertise is already widely recognized. Co-headed by Frédéric Sardain and now boasting fifteen professionals, this team will become a major asset in providing companies with support for their most complex technological, digital and industrial projects.

After two decades developing centers of excellence within Aramis, Benjamin May and David Roche will provide the firm with cutting-edge expertise, ranging from strategic transactions to complex litigation in a variety of technology sectors, including artificial intelligence matters. Benjamin and David are also highly recognized for their expertise in the fintech and life sciences sectors.

"We are delighted to welcome Benjamin, David and their team to our firm. Their unique expertise and strategic vision are perfectly in line with our ambition to develop an offer of excellence in the technology and industrial sectors", say Catherine Saint Geniest and Karl Hepp de Sevelinges, co-managing partners of Jeantet.

"Joining Jeantet is a fantastic opportunity for us to work with the existing teams to build a market-leading Tech/IP practice. We believe in Jeantet's independent yet highly international model, to support our clients in their legal and strategic challenges", add Benjamin May and David Roche.

"We are very pleased with the arrival of Benjamin and David's team, which gives us the required critical mass to meet our clients' ever-increasing and demanding Tech and IP challenges", comments Frédéric Sardain, partner at Jeantet.
